

Adobe Education Exchange - A beginners best friend

Posted At : November 16, 2011 12:05 PM | Posted By : Tim Garver

Related Categories: General

I have recently been exploring the Adobe Education Exchange, and I must say it is a wealth of information for anyone interested in the art of Application development or Digital Design realms of the technology industry.

For ColdFusion I found two resources there that give the novice a great starting point for their future into application development.

- Introduction to ColdFusion 8
- Advanced ColdFusion 8 Development

I have a few students I am tutoring under me and both are starting with the Intro. Neither of them have web development experience, or for that matter any development experience and this is a great place to start.

In the coming months I will post some of their Ah Haa moments to share.